To whom it may concern,

We engaged Steven Rosenberg in July of 1996. It is an incident in my business life that I will never forget and that has changed my views and intentions in terms of what can be accomplished by mediation.

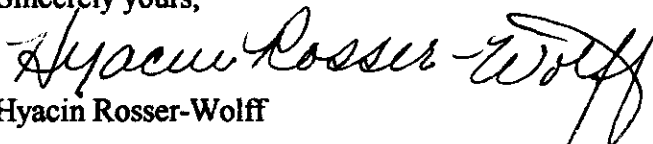

From the initial phone call for help, Mr. Rosenberg conveyed a sincere and professional desire to help us move from moral paralysis to hopeful relief and functionality.

We are a intimate, 5 person office and needless to say we were not familiar with meditation techniques. We spent 10 hours in a full day session with our employer and 4 staff members.

Myself and 3 staff members are female so naturally this ups the stress ante when confronting a male employer. Mr. Rosenberg helped us all to create a protected working space where we were able to articulate our emotional and business agenda without fear. We began to build a firm foundation that day.

My opinion is that any and all companies should engage in healthful, creative mediation to solve problems that are a psychic and financial drain. The only difference would be how quickly one would be smart enough to come to this decision. The healing effects are immeasurable. There is no question as to the effect on your bottom line. Businesses are families/communities of people and in today's stressful environment Mr. Rosenberg plays a necessary role in any company's continuing success.

Sincerely yours,

Hyacin Rosser-Wolff
