Re: Letter of Recommendation, Steven Rosenberg

To Whom It May Concern:

I recently had the pleasure of attending Steven Rosenberg's Mediation Training. As a psychotherapist and business consultant I have attended a number of barely-tolerable continuing education workshops and seminars. Steven's training was a delightful and refreshing surprise. His presentation was educational, enlightening, encouraging and, most unexpectedly, entertaining. I was amazed that 40 hours could go by so fast . . . and, I came away from the seminar encouraged by the ways in which I could augment my professional therapeutic offering with mediation services

Clearly, Steven has been developing and honing his presentation for years. He has blended his professional experience and his personal perspectives with a practical, straightforward, humor-infused teaching style that enables trainees to easily digest the material. The structure of the course has been intentionally designed to move participants toward a sense of competence. Participants were introduced to basic skills followed by intensive practice periods during which the application of these newly acquired skills could be road-tested in realistic mediation scenarios. The coaching and feedback sessions following the practice sessions anchored the learning and helped to integrate all the principles and practicalities of mediation.

Steven himself has the rare ability to maintain a professional demeanor without sacrificing his personal authenticity. He genuinely connects with people, embodying the true spirit of mediation in his interactions with participants throughout the training. His enthusiasm for the art and craft of mediation is infectious and I found his commitment to the fundamental principles of neutrality inspiring. I would recommend Steven as a mediator to any of my clients and I certainly recommend his training to any mental health professionals who need to refine their intervention or negotiation skills, are considering mediation as a career path, or who simply need CEU's! A very applicable investment of time and energy!

Sincerely,

Annelisa MacBean, M.A.
